The Doors of Sleep.

Our child is dead. O, foolish lie!
Our children—they are never dead:
If babes on earth do never die
Where do they live instead?
Can there be any world of flowers,
Fit paradise where such may dwell?
O, let me fly beyond the Hours
To Angels that can tell.

I see streams strewn with matchless flowers
And we walk on them—so it seems:
Is this immortal glory ours,
Or are these visions only dreams?
Now hand in hand we seem to sail,
Heart twined with heart—O, it is seeming?
Are we immortal or as frail
Mortality but dreaming?

Our child is dead—it seemeth so;
Our child still lives—the angels say;
Lives he on earth, we wish to know—
Skies are so far, so far away;
Tell us but that which never seems,
That he is here and by our side,
That all our lives are only dreams—
That real God doth hide.

We walk where now our feet touch not— Our cherub has us by the hand; This is the home we had forgot In the actual Living Land; Out of the Doors of Sleep I passed With delight Earth cannot give, And I have learned God's ways at last, And when and where I live.

What Divers Meet With Under Water.

What Divers Meet With Under Water.

When the vessel has settled down in a sandy bottom, it is preserved many months from breaking up; and its position may be much the same as it would be when floating in calm water, if it be not tilted over by any under current drifts. The light, of course, depends a good deal upon the depth and upon the nature of the bottom; but where there is no chalk to give a milky thickness to the water, the diver pursues his work in a kind of gloomy twilight. By the aid of this he can see and feel his way round the ship, but when he ascends to the deck and winds down into the principal cabins he finds everything pitch dark, and has nothing to gnide him but his hands. This is the most difficult, and yet the most frequent labor he has to encounter; the danger being that in a large vessel, where the cabin stairs are deep, and the cabins are long and broad, he may get his air tube twisted round some unfamiliar projections, and so squeeze off his supply of life from above. In positions such as this he requires all his nerve and self possession, all his power of feeling his way back in the exact road that he came. He may have got the precious casket to which he has been directed in his arms; but what of that, if he die before he can reach the stairs?

The cold, helpless masses that bump against his helmet, as they float along the low roof over his his head, are the decomposed corpses of those who were huddled together in the cabin when the ship went down. A few of these may be on the floor under his feet, but only when pinned down by an overturned table or a fallen chest. Their tendency is ever upward, and the remorseless sea washes away the dead infant When the vessel has settled down in a by an overturned table or a failen onest. Their tendency is ever upward, and the remorseless sea washes away the dead infant from its dead mother's arms, the dead wife from her dead husband's embrace. If the wreck be in the channel, the small crabs are already beginning to fatten on their prey. The diver disentangles himself from this silent crowd, and ascends the welcome stairs to the deck. The treasure he has rescued is hauled up into the attendant diving boat, and he returns again to renew his work. He seldom meets with an accident under water; never, perhaps, with death, and the chief risk he runs is from getting some heavy piece of ship lumber overturned on his long train of air pipe. Even in this he feels the sudden check and the want of six groups his way, back to the the want of air, gropes his way back to the obstruction, removes it, signals to his companions to be raised, and reaches the boat exhausted and alarmed, but not so much as to give up his place in the trade.

What a mercy it is, that in pity to fallen man, Heaven has kindly hidden the future from his view! How often does it happen, in the varied stages of human experience, that at the moment of our greatest self-security, and when suspicion sleeps, danger is most imminent! ger is most imminent!

Letter from Rip Van Winkle Bar.

Letter from Rip Van Winkle Bar.

Rif Vanwinkle Bar, April, 1860.

Editor Colonist:—After a lapse of some thirty days I have at length arrived in my frail bark at the town of Lytton, situated at the confluence of Fraser and Thomps- in River, which place is becoming quite a rival to the towns located further down stream, including the mighty capitol which bears the imported name of New Westminster. I stopped only a few hours at the latter place and consequently gleaned little worthy of commentation. New Langley a little further up is abandoned entirely to the rats, and the only marks of civilization left is an old sign of the enterprising firm of Huntoon & Co., who have got it all their own way at Old Langley, being the only firm there in their line with the exception of that dilapidated old structure on top of the bill which remains as yet an emblem of savage oppression and barbarism. I proceeded on the even tenor of my way over shallow bars, swift running ripples, and around snaggy bends till I arrived at Hope where I found nothing very striking, as the inhabitants are at present in "statu quo," not wishing to take immediate flight, daily exceeting something better than promises will be meted out to them, believing that they have lived in and on Hopelong enough and are now desirous of something more substantial.

Yale struck me as being the only town on the river where the inhabitants intended to reside; being very neatly laid out and dotted with a number of substantial buildings. The many canoes plying between it and Lytton during the low stage of water, and pack animals during the high, give quite a stimulus to its business appearance. While I remained there I had an introduction to your resident correspondent Jonah, who is every neady laid out and dotted with a number of substantial buildings. The many canoes plying between it and Lytton I had an introduction to your feeded to reside; being very neatly laid out and dotted with a number of substantial buildings. The many canoes plying between the near the pet

Another Victory Over the Obstructives Had a stranger picked up the organ of the have obstructives yesterday, he might imagine the combination editors, Fraser, Helmcken, Cary and Co., were all serene, and that in our to-days issue) had been exactly the thing they wanted. But those conversant with what occurred at the debate, only threw down the sheet in profound disgust, and asked what next will this presumptuous concern print for truth? Why they were defeated foot and horse, and the commander compelled to eat his own words. The very words used in debate on April 25th, Mr. Cary swallowed. He would "not smell one of the accounts." He would not "meddle" with them. This colony had nothing to do with them. In his estimation it w uld be our ruin even to look at them. And yet the astounding part of it was that the minister on whom rested the dignity of prime minister, for scarcely an hour before he was defeated, finding his case hopeless, turns round and begged for quarter by seconding the amendment of Mr. Coles with which Major Foster concurred, and which only gives more definitely what was first asked. Thus he deserted the governmental policy and tendered the submission of the rank and file to that old war-horse of the reform party Major Foster. Before Mr. Cary however seconded the amendment, an attempt was made by the Speaker to rule out the vote of reconsideration as unparliamentary, stating that there was no precedent for it, when he had in the last Assembly admitted it, and on one occasion, contrary to custom, ruled that only a minority could move for a vote of reconsideration. This however was only another somersault, lately very common in the ranks of the obstructives. Seeing the determined stand of the reform members he dare not allow an appeal from the Chair to the House; and the leader of the obstructives seeing the day was lost, made a virtue of necessity and surrendered bag and baggage; but even then he received many wounds from the sharp-shooters of Foster, Crease, Waddington, Cooper and Coles, before the articles of capitulation were recorded in the journals of the House. The results of the victory are already seen in the organ. "His Excellency will seek other advisers," if those intrusted with his measures do not succeed. This may mean that Mr. Cary is to be thrown overboard; or that a dissolution of the House would follow. The sooner the first is done the better; and as for the second no doubt exists but the obstructives would be without a supporter in the next House if that took place. But one curious admission is worthy of particular note. The organ admits for the first time that nine-tenths of the proceeds of the sale of Victoria town lots are due to the colony. That is victory on victory. When we first claimed it, the government party ridiculed the idea; treated it as impossible; and fit only to be believed by those who believed in the existence of an unicorn, or that fabulous Yankee animal the guyascutus. We shall now take good care to hold them to their admission. We do not conclude as the organ wishes it to be understood that the nine-tenths will be taken in abatement of the debt due to the Hudson Bay Company. For we contend there is no debt due it. But that a large debt is due to the colony. And if the Coles amendment is followed up as a good general follows up a victory, these nine-tenths will save the imposition of taxes, except for municipal purposes, for years to come. But the organ is anxious to wait for the overplus if any. Not at all. The time is now. Escape taxes. Save the pioneer from heavy public burdens. As we invite free goods by free ports; so invite a free population by freedom from taxes. Allow the present time to pass, and the Fur Trade branch of the Hudson Bay Company, retired Chief Factors and all, who are so much interested in the lot dividend, will find ample means to get the lion's share, and then the colony may whistle for its dividend.

The fear-stricken pen that made the admission that nine-tenths of the sales-some $300,000, besides the property still unsold, worth as much more-may have done it in order to temporize, by throwing it out as a bait to urge on the estimates. But not a tax should be levied (except by incorporating Victoria, and thus relieving the community from many voluntary taxes that fall on a few) till investigation goes to the bedrock of our affairs, and lays the corner-stone several of their favors.

nor interest can disturb it. The sympathy sought on the ground of obstructing the government, by not voting the estimates, is an ignis fatuus. No fear of it coming to a dead lock. If the company's grant is actually revoked, then the company is not liable for our support. But if it has not been revoked, then it is still liable for the ordinary ex penses; and all the government has to do is to demand the same. If the Home Government has relieved the company from its responsibility, then the Home Government is liable to support the Civil List; and drafts may just as well be drawn by this colony as by British Columbia, on the Imperial Treasthe debate on Thursday (reported elsewhere ury; and they are just as likely to be honored. The bug-bear that the delay of a session for information on all our affairs from England, would produce disastrous consequences, is puerile special pleading. For there is more work to do now-leaving the estimates out of the account—than can be done in two years. But why did the administration postpone till this late day the estimates? If the grant was revoked last May, certainly nine months to a year is a long time to go without estimates; and yet matters have reached such a crisis, that the government will come to a dead lock if it waits three months longer! Nonsense. The whole secret is, that any attempt to cleanse the Augean stable is feared; and everything will be done to avoid it, because 'The Fur Trade town lot dividends" are divided here.

Those who are afraid of the government coming to a dead lock if the estimates are not voted, better read the estimates laid before the House. All they ask the House to provide, in order to meet the expenses for 1860, is £2,539 0 1; and for the want of this small pittance, we are threatened with a dead lock, the Post Office closed, Cary & Co. turned out, a dissolution of the Assembly, and what not? In order to meet this petty sum, that could be borrowed in two hours, all investigation must be voted down? If a true statement of the estimates has been laid before the House, we have no reason to stop in making a searching investigation into our affairs; and but little fear of the Home Government, or the company either, being called on for much. If a false statement has been made, let the government take the consequences. But of needy and hungry office-seekers on one side, and local Fur Trade dividends on the other, beware.

NANAIMO .- We learn that B. W. Pearse, Esq., Acting Colonial Surveyor, has been ordered to Nanaimo to lay out a town adjoining the 6193 acres of land belonging to the Hudson Bay Company, and separated from the present town by Mill Creek. The land is excellent where the site of the new town is proposed to be located, and possesses many attractions for those desirous of procuring a rural home.

The report in circulation that the agents of the company had sold lots and then re-funded the money, is said to be true; and that the feudal lords who rule that section of the colony do just about as they please. We recommend the Legislature to turn their attention without delay to the company's land claims in that quarter, and not suffer to be withheld from public sale the 6193 acres that they have purchased of themselves in that quarter. The sale is not made in the colonial books to the Nanalmo Coal Company, but to the Governor and Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay. Ever since the claim was taken up, their operatives have been refused land there, and now, after being sold and paid for, they are not allowed to get it. View it in any light you please, there is only one result, and that is that the Company, by claiming the township of Nanaimo as their private property, are directly violating the letter and spirit of the grant. And the Legislature that sits tamely by and submits to it, are neither courting the support nor the confidence of a free people. It is idle to imagine that because the Assembly are not empowered to sell the lands that they have no right to see that they are disposed of in accordance with the grant. As the grand inquest of the colony, the Legislature has the entire supervision over all our affairs,and failing to exercise that right they fail to do their duty. Nanaimo township is, with the exception of Victoria, the most valuable township in the colony, and with a view of providing means to support the government, any neglect to make it available to that purpose would be a palpable dereliction of a public duty. A word to the wise is suffi-

STEALING A SQUAW AND ATTEMPTING TO Kill. - Mortimer Kelliher, on Sunday night went to the house of one Eugene Gasper, at Old Langley, and induced a squaw living with the latter to accompany him to his home. Gaspar followed to rescue the squaw, when Kelliker fired a revolver twice at him. The next day Kelliher was arrested and examined before Judges Spalding and Brew at New Westminster, and fully committed for trial. There being no jail at the Capitol of British Columbia, he was brought here on the Hunt on Thursday and committed to prison.

Frankiii, Greene, and Jordon, ter, Tolmie, and Gordon, Major Foster's resolution to ask the Governor for accounts between the Home Government and the Hudson Bay Company, was taken up.

The Speaker said that that he had come to the conclusion that the reconsideration of Mr. Foster's resolution was not Parliamentary, and read extracts from the Manual to support he resistion.

position.

Mr. Crease had always understood that if mem read extracts from the Manual to support h.s position.

Mr. Crease had always understood that if members of Parliament voting with the majority wished a reconsideration, it was proper for the House to grant it.

Mr. Waddington thought the Speaker was carrying matters too far; as long as a Bill had not passed, it was proper to reconsider any clause that conflicted with another.

Mr. Cary called the hon. gentleman to order, and hoped a long discussion on this unimportant matter would not be allowed.

Mr. Waddington—If this thing is allowed, the Speaker has power to close a debate whenever he chooses. The question is still pending, and consequently can be reconsidered.

Mr. Foster—If the Chair does not support the reconsideration. I shall take the sense of the House; the time for raising the objection was when the motion to reconsider was offered, and if the House does not support me, I shall use a members privilege and withdraw the resolution, record a protest upon the journals of the House and bring the motion forward at some other time.

Mr. Gooper—Why, that is the word upon which the whole matter hinged. How word 'reconsideration, if I had not used the word?

Mr. Speaker—Well, you all seem in favor of a reconsideration, if I had not used the word?

Mr. Speaker—Well, you all seem in favor of a reconsideration, Go on.

Mr. Coles arose, and after stating his concurrence with the resolution of Mr. Foster, stated that he should offer the following as an amendment:

That His Excellency the Governor be respectfully prayed to inform this House whether the Home Government had assumed its proprietorship of this Island, and cancelled the Hudson Bay Company's grant in this colony; whether this fully prayed to inform this House whether the Home Government had assumed its proprietorship of this Island, and cancelled the Hudson Bay Company's grant in this colony; whether this colony is under any liabilities, and if so to whom; what those liabilities are? and to furnish to this House the accounts, setting forth such liabilities in detail in detail.

Mr. Cary [quickly]—I beg to second that amend-

Mr. Cary [quickly]—I beg to second that amendment.

Mr. Crease—At the meeting before the last I contradicted a statement which fell from the hon, gentlemen from Victoria [Mr. Cary's] lips—to the effect that when the civil list was granted, the lands would be turned over for the use of the colony, as the hon, member, attempted to set me right in regard to the matter, in reply to a remark of mine, but—

The Speaker—I call the hon, gentleman to order; he is not speaking to the question.

Mr. Crease—I merely wish to give Mr. Cary an opportunity to consider the statement which had been heard by every member present, and also appeared in the Colonist.

The Speaker—This matter was all settled at the last meeting and its discussion at present is out of order.

Mr. Foster—With the amendment from the hon.

been heard by every member present, and also appeared in the COLONIST.

The Speaker—This matter was all settled at the last meeting and its discussion at present is out of order.

Mr. Foster—With the amendment from the hon member from Saanich [Mr. Colez.] I perfectly agree in every respect. The Attorney General has used expressions in regard to the Hudson Bay Company's accounts with the Imperial Government which he had no right to use. Such remarks as refusing to smell bits of pacer etc., were highly improper as applied to such documents. I have not ado ted any modern or ungentlemently mode of proceedure in asking for these accounts. Why those terms should have been laid at my door, I cannot tell. With regard to the question itself, it lies before us in the most precise terms possible, and I hope the House will adopt it. There is the greatest necessity to look into these matters before the House on iders the estimates. There is no provision in the H. B. Company's grant whereby the company may throw off its grant without permission from the Home Government. Hefore the accounts asked for are rendered, we cannot conclude our labors upon many important subjects to be laid before the House. The responsible position this Parliament holds towards the Colony and the Home Government, der, ands a rendering of the accounts. Most decidedly, if we were to go on and vote sums of money, supplies, etc., without knowing how matters had gone before we took the helm, the country would be justified in saying that we were the blindest set of men ever assembled together. We have not the slightest information before us. Are we sure the Home Government will receive in tota the H. B. Co.'s accounts before receiving some information from this House? [hear, hear.] This is a subject which touches every member of this House. Any person judging this Parliament rightly or justly (if we shrunk from inquiring into the affairs, and went on with the Estimates,) would say, "Why, they are a most daring set of fellows; they have taken all the liabi Coinsy before this period. The grant of lands to the Company was a transfer or the proprietory rights of the Home Government, with a clause allowing the latter to resume possession of the lands. Should the Home Government say to us, "Take those lands and pay off the claims of the H. B. Co." we should be very apt to reply, "You have made a bad bargain, and now wish to shift the responsibility to us." But when we do take a step to understand what our affairs are, we do a very rational thing. We have received—(I hope the hon, gentleman [Mr. Crease] will pay particular attention to what I say—he has misunderstood me before, and may again)—

Mr. Crasse—I will, for I have my doubts.
Mr. Carse—I will, for I have my doubts.
Mr. Carses—I will, for I have my doubts.
Mr. Carses—I will, for I have my doubts.
Mr. Carses—I will find that information has been refecived from home to the effect that the accounts between the Home Government and the H. B. Co. are still under consideration. It is on the books of this House that you have written home that an inquiry might be made into these very accounts, and the reply was, the Home Government does not require the interveution of this government in the settlement of its accounts. You will also find that you must provide for your own expenses like any other British Colony. But you will not find that the Home Government requires us to assume its liabilities to the H. B. Co. The Home Government and the latter are at variance with regard to these accounts; but we have never yet been asked for any information with regard to the faffair. I was quite surprised to hear the personal remarks which fell from the lips of the hon, gen-tleman who has preceded me, but admire the lovely, charming disposition with which he stands forth as a champion in defence of his country, [Mr. Cary here used some sarcastic and personal remarks regarding the gentleman from Lake District, which our reporter could not catch.] He [Mr. Foster] has made the aspertion in debate that the Civil List must be passed.

Mr. Foster—No, no; never.

[Mr. Foster] has made the assertion in debate that the Civil List must be passed.

Mr. Foster—No, no; never.

Mr. Coles—However inexperienced I may be in such matters, it strikes me that the remarks of Mr. Cary are at least unparliamentary.

Mr. Waddington—Is noisy clamor and personal abuse to characterize the ministerial communications from the governor to this House? I regret to hear language used by the Attorney General which might be very proper while addressing a petit jury, but is entirely out of place here. The Governor informed a deputation of which I was a member, last July that the lands were still in the possession of the Hudson Bay Company; the Opening Speech and the Stamp Correspondence state the same thing. We are told that the hon. member never attempted to prevent a reconsideration. Did not Mr. Cary bring forward a resolution take up the Estimates on Wednesday, in order to stave off the reconsideration of Mr. Foster's resolution?

Mr. Crease—Mr. Speaker, I have great pleasure

Mr. Crease—Mr. Speaker, I have great pleasure a giving support to the amendment; it should Mr. Crease—Mr. Speaker, I have great pleasure in giving support to the amendment; it should have preceded the original resolution. We should certainly know how we stand before we go into further expenditure. The Attorney General has made himself very facetious and amusing in his remarks directed towards the member from the Lake District; but I remember distinctly, and the words are still ringing in my ears, that the hon, member made the assertion that when the Civil List was granted, the lands would be given over to the colony.

Mr. Cary—Ohe member says I said one thing and several others heard me say something entirely different. If I did make such a statement, I never meant it.

Mr. Cary—One member says I said one thing and several others heard me say something entirely different. If I did make such a statement, I never meant it.

Mr. Crease—Very well, then I have nothing more to say on the subject; but I cannot give the hon. member credit for his efforts to stiffe discussion on Mr. Foster's resolution. If His Excellency will not give us the necessary information, we should apply for information to higher quarters. Every member should endeavor, irrespective of party, to settle the matter.

Mr. Cooper—The subject now before us involves the serious consideration of the House, and it is our duty to ascertain the nature of the debtor and creditor account between the Government and the Hudson Bay Company. It will be foily to tell us that we have nothing to do with the final settlement, and it will be difficult to convince the people of this colony that their interests are not combined with it. Doubtless the Hudson Bay Company have a just and equidatle claim against the Imperial Government; but I also fittly believe that this colony has a claim against the Hudson Bay Com-any. [Hear, hear.] His Excelency the Governor should be asked to lay before us the accounts as specified in the amendment to the motion of the hon. member for Lake District, they being necessary to enable the House to arrive at some definite base of action, and this House believing that we shall be able to render valuable aid to the Imperial Government in the settlement of a question that every one holding property in this colony is deeply interested. [Hear, hear.]

Mr. Franklim—It affords me pleasure to see that things have taken such a favorable turn. Every member heretofore has been groping in the dark. The people have had a sort of legislative Assembly, it is true; but it has been without power, [Laughter], and when a Parlimment ceases to have power over supplies, it ceases to be a Parliament, and.

power over supplies, it ceases to be a Parliament, and—.

A Voice—Divide! divide!

Mr. Franklin—I think I have allowed the members to make their speeches, and I intend to make mine, if I stand on my legs till midnight; the question before us is important, and the amendment is highly proper.

The question was then taken upon the original motion, which was lost; and the amendment was ADOPTED NANKMOUSLY!

Mr. Franklin introduced his motion that His Exaceliency be requested to lay before this House copies of all dispatches, etc., received from the Ho me Government during the past twelve months; but the motion not being seconded, fell through.

Mr. Tolmie's Bill to improve the breed of stock in the colony, was read a second time and referred to a Committee of the Whole.

The House then adjourned to Monday next, at 3 o'clock.

She lay on her beam ends for about five hours. whenthe deck load having gradually washed off, Captain Oberg cut the lanyards of the fore-rigging, the foremast went overboard and she righted; she drifted ashore on Saturday morning, on Whidby Island, about two miles south of Deception Passage. Captain Oberg and the crew were thirty-six hours on the wreck without eating, and nearly perished; some of them being unable to walk when they got on shore. The Page is owned by J. G. A DARK Row. - George C. Hobbs, colored, complained of James Stephens, also colored, for assaulting him at a rumshop on Johnson street. Stephens pleaded guilty to assaulting Hobbs, but stated in extenuation that the latter had called him a "nigger," and that he wouldn't take that from any man. The judge fined him ten shillings and costs. This Stephens is an old offender, having been up twice before on similar charges within a month.

FROM THE RIVER .- The steamer Wilson G. Hant arrived from Fraser liver on Thursday morning last. Ballou's Express brought down $5,000 in dust. The money stolen from Romano at Fort Yale had not been found at last accounts. The miners possessing high-water diggings were doing well; but many claims are under water. The river is rising rapidly.
